

GERMAN WOMAN AFTER ESTATE

Finds Both Sons Dead, After Thirty Years' Absence From Home.

THEIR ESTATES NEVER PROBATED

Valuable Eighty-Acre Farm Was Given To Woman Who Cared For One Of The Brothers—Returned

Notes To The Neighboring Farmers.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Mantowoc, Wis., Dec. 28.—Plaintiff to claim the farm which was the property of her deceased son whose death she learned of only a short time ago when she directed a letter to city officials here in an effort to trace him after an absence of thirty years, Mrs. Wilhelm Kadhe of Germany has retained local attorneys to institute proceedings.
Frederick and Simon Kadhe came here in the 70's and after a few years neglected to write home and when the two died in this country, twelve years ago, the mother in Germany had no knowledge of the fact and did not know where they were.
Inquiry which has been made since the letter received by city officials reveals that Simon Kadhe was a resident of Cleveland, this county, and at his death, possessed an 80-acre farm and considerable money.
The farm was given to a girl who cared for him in his last illness, but it is said no deed to the property was made and as there is no will, the mother may be able to establish her claim to the estate.
On his death bed Kadhe is said to have returned to farmers, his neighbors more than thirty years which he held against them, without asking payment.
The estate has never reached probate and considerable mystery seems to enshroud the affairs of the dead man and the investigation now under way may bring interesting developments. Kadhe's brother Frederick died a short time previous to his death.

MISS ETHEL ROOSEVELT TO MAKE HER DEBUT TUESDAY

President And Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt Will Introduce Their Daughter To Society.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Washington, D. C., Dec. 28.—"The President and Mrs. Roosevelt are to make a small dance at the White House on Monday evening, December 28, at 9:30 p. m."

Such is the simple announcement made for the social debut of Miss Ethel Roosevelt tonight, which promises to be by far the smartest affair ever given in the White House by the President and Mrs. Roosevelt, except the ceremonies attending the wedding of Miss Alice Roosevelt and Representative Nicholas Longworth of Ohio.

The term "small" applied to the dance by the President and Mrs. Roosevelt must not be taken literally. It is to be small only in that the invitations have been confined to Miss Roosevelt's friends and the younger people in the official set, whose parents have on all formal invitations been of the season at the White House. This means that several hundred guests will help the daughter of the President dance her way into the social world.

The dance is to be given in the East room, where a small army of decorators were at work today converting the historic chamber into a veritable bower of floral beauty. There are to be elaborate floral decorations in all the rooms on the main floor of the executive mansion. In the main corridor the niches will be filled with decorative plants, stately palms and tree ferns. Behind a screen of rhododendrons will be stationed the magnificent Marine Band orchestra. A special program of music has been prepared for the occasion. The pieces were selected for the most part by Miss Roosevelt herself.

Miss Roosevelt's coming-out gown is still a secret, but by good authority it is reported to be a white handkerchief dress embroidered in white forget-me-nots and made in an empire princess style.

The debut dance is the one topic of Washington society today. It is not only because the debutante is the daughter of the President that so much interest is taken in her formal entrance into society, but that she has made many real friends in Washington among all classes.

Of the young woman herself the public knows much through the public press, which has chronicled her personality to the fullest during the past few months. Miss Roosevelt has lived in the White House longer than any young girl in history, not even excepting Nellie Grant. During her girlhood in the executive mansion she has met the most prominent men and women of the country—not only as a child. Now she is ready to accept her inheritance, to greet them on terms of mature equality. Perhaps no young woman in official life ever came to her responsibilities with better equipment.

A year ago last spring Miss Ethel left the National Cathedral School for Girls. During the greater part of the time since then she has been putting the finishing touches to her education under the direction of a governess. She has paid particular attention to German and French. Although not by any means a brilliant musician she is quite talented and possesses, in addition to a thorough education, upon which her father insists, many accomplishments essential to the social success of a young American girl.

Following closely in the footsteps of her father and mother, Miss Roosevelt is an enthusiastic horsewoman, and not only drives a stylish dogcart with great vim and dash, but is a fearless rider. She rides like a young Amazon, with free and graceful abandon. She was one of the first of Washington's very young girls to take to the cross saddle.

Unlike her sister, Mrs. Longworth, Miss Ethel takes great interest in political and economical questions. She is fond of a political argument and the whippersnapper that she is not averse to engaging in a forensic tilt with her father in the section of the family sitting room.

Miss Ethel often has been spoken of as the prattiest Roosevelt of this generation. She is tall and supple of figure, with a mass of chestnut hair and gray eyes so dark that at times they appear black. Her complexion is pure and clear, very much after the English style.

Miss Roosevelt has exquisite taste in dress, which has been cultivated by allowing her to have a voice in the selection of her wardrobe ever since she was a small child. While not prim, she usually dresses in tailor-made gowns.

She has inherited the literary taste of her father, and she also possesses in unusual degree for a woman, his love of animals. She paints in water colors, teaches a class in Sunday school, is fond of tennis and rowing, and, all in all, is a many-sided young person.

FOR MINE SAFETY

Rescue Stations Planned for the Coal Districts.

SCHEME OF THE GOVERNMENT

Experts Are to Train Mine Crews in the Use of the Oxygen Helmet and Other Devices to Reduce Number of Fatalities.

Washington, Dec. 28.—Rescue stations in the chief coal mining districts of the country are the latest scheme of the government geological survey to cut down the mortality lists in the mines.

The new stations will be at or near the greatest centers of accidents and it will be the purpose of the experts to teach the miners and mine bosses how to use the most approved apparatus for mine rescue work.

Government mining engineers, thoroughly trained in the use of rescue apparatus, will be assigned to these stations, and they will be ready at a moment's notice to go to any disaster in their district. The experts will be equipped with oxygen helmets, which will enable them to enter a mine at once, even though it is filled with gas or smoke.

Will Train Rescue Crews.
These stations also will be headquarters of the engineers for the study of the waste of coal in mining, one of the important problems before the geological survey.

It is the intention to have every station fitted up with an airtight room where gas can be generated. The coal mining companies are to be invited to send picked men to these stations, where they will be trained by the government experts in the use of the oxygen helmets. It is not the purpose of the government to engage in general rescue work, but rather to demonstrate this apparatus until such time as the mine owners have thoroughly trained rescue crews at their mines. All of the rescue stations are to be erected in co-operation with the mine owners and state geological surveys.

Where the Stations Will Be.
One of the rescue stations will be at Urbana, Ill., in connection with the University of Illinois. This station will take care of Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Iowa, northern Missouri and western Kentucky.

A second station will be located probably at Raton, N. M., to take care of New Mexico, Colorado, Utah, Wyoming and Montana. The largest coal output in New Mexico and Colorado comes from the Trinidad field, which is immediately accessible to Raton. A second station is suggested for this district, to be located at Salt Lake City.

The coal fields of Oklahoma, Arkansas and southwestern Missouri will be taken care of by a station in the neighborhood of South McAlester, Okla.

Southern Location Undecided.

Several locations are suggested for the station which will cover Alabama, Tennessee, Virginia, eastern Kentucky, Georgia and southern West Virginia. One plan is to locate a station at Knoxville, Tenn., in connection with the University of Tennessee, which has a mining course. Birmingham, Ala., and Lexington, Ky., have also been suggested for location of the station in this district. George S. Rice, mining engineer, will have general charge of all mining inquiries at the stations and J. W. Paul, former state mine inspector of West Virginia, will have supervisory charge of all rescue work.

At these stations not only will opportunity be given the miners to become familiar with the rescue apparatus, but safety lamps of all designs will be tested for their general safety and efficiency in the presence of the miners and the mine owners.

ELEVATOR FALLS; 11 INJURED.

Detroit People Hurt Going to Christian Science Meeting.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 28.—Mrs. W. B. Ragan of Bay City and Mildred Caley, ten years old, of Detroit each suffered a broken leg last night and nine other people were less seriously injured when an elevator in the Hamlet building fell from the ground floor to the basement just as it was starting to take its load of passengers to a Christian Science meeting on one of the upper floors. The accident is said to have been caused by the cable pulling out of the socket in which it was attached to the top of the elevator. The fall of only one story was not sufficient to bring the safety clutches into play.

THE ORIGINATOR OF THE WHITE HAND SOCIETY.

A problem which has been confronting the Chicago police for some time is the solution of the so-called "White Hand" troubles. While no little worry and excitement have been caused by the many threatening letters demanding money of prominent people, as far as known no attempt has been made to carry out the threats. The letters are always couched in the most gruesome symbols, with the ever present skull, crossbones coffin handle and the like.

In a very remarkable way the threatening letters have been traced to one young man, a young fellow, innocent enough in his appearance, who is the driver on a grocery wagon—William Pollard. Pollard claims that he wanted to see how his letters appeared in print and seemed greatly surprised and surprised to find he had committed a crime against the law and decency.

It is thought his letters are the result of his having read detective stories. The letters were addressed to Chief Shippy, one or two clergymen and private citizens, in each case demanding a large sum of money and threatening a blow-up by a bomb.

THE CORLESS CORN.

T. J. Seaton of the Fairview Farm Seed company of Stoddard, Ill., has attracted much attention by his recent experiments and success in corless corn. To Luther Burbank we owe the seedless orange and the thornless cactus, but it remains for an Illinois farmer to originate the corless corn. The ear shown above is eleven inches long, eight inches in circumference and weighs one pound. The cob is practically eliminated, being merely a stalk on which the individual kernels grow. The supposition is that this corn is something like the old primitive corn from which all of our pure breeds have originated. In this early form the corn grew on the stalk with each kernel enclosed in an individual husk of its own, but the ears were very small and inferior.

The new corless corn has some very interesting characteristics which the breeder does not care to disclose at the present time as it is in the experimental stage. It is claimed for this corn that when perfected it will enable the farmer to realize a greater production in quality and quantity than at present.

Nine Year Old Boy Broke Into Grocery Store in Monroe Sunday Afternoon—Made Daring Escape.

Monroe, Wis., Dec. 28.—Alfred Klossner, nine years old, caused a sensation here Sunday afternoon by breaking into a grocery store and then escaping from the building through the roof, when the police and a number of citizens were standing watch. The boy has been in court before charged with stealing and while on the stand in one case he testified that he was whipped at home unless he brought stolen corn and other articles home. Sunday he entered the store of C. L. Chambers, breaking a window in the basement. He was seen to enter the building and the police were notified. A guard was placed at the front and rear doors. When the boy had secured what he wanted he sought his escape through the rear as he had entered but there he found a guard. Then he ran to the front door and found a guard. Next this resourceful, youthful thief went to the second floor and climbed to the roof by a ladder that he put in place. He ran from the Chambers' store clear across the south side of the square on top of the store buildings and descended through a skylight at the opposite end of the block. He ran to a house a block from the county jail and lay in hiding in the cellar until discovered later in the afternoon.

ELLSWORTH CASE WAS ADJOURNED ONE WEEK

Condition of Defendant is Such That Examination Could Not Be Continued.

To the disappointment of about one hundred spectators gathered in the municipal courtroom this morning, the continuation of the examination of Elmer Ellsworth was adjourned until next Monday morning at ten o'clock. This adjournment was taken on account of Mr. Ellsworth's physical condition. The defendant was in the courtroom, but is still very weak and the motion for further adjournment made by his attorney was not opposed by the prosecution.

Drunk.

John Kennedy, who was picked up intoxicated yesterday, pleaded guilty and was fined $2 and costs. The fine was suspended on his promise to get out of town. Fritz Horsternman was brought up on the same offense and denied that he was drunk. Later he changed his mind and paid a fine of $2.10.

Lost Satchel.

M. C. Aldrich of Lima reported the loss of his satchel to the police this morning. Mr. Aldrich was writing a letter at the postoffice about 10:30 this morning and his satchel was on the desk beside him. When he finished the letter and looked for his property it was gone. He immediately reported the loss to the police and shortly afterwards a woman, who said she had picked up the satchel through a mistake, came to the post-office looking for the owner.

EVANSVILLE MAN ROBBED AT DEPOT

Was Struck by Billy and Relieved of About Four Dollars and a Quart of Whiskey.

Saturday night between eight o'clock and half past eight, T. D. Lewis, of Evansville, was relieved of a pocket book, containing about four dollars in money, and a flask of whiskey which he had in one of his pockets, while waiting for a train at the Northwestern depot at the corner of the baggage room, near the lunch room. The theft was accomplished by striking Mr. Lewis with a billy or a club of some sort, one of two men wielding it.

The Robbery.

The robbery took place just after the Waterbury mail passenger train had come in from Chicago, and while the baggage man, "Tom" Brown, was still busy unloading. Mr. Lewis had spent the day in Janesville, arriving here with about ten dollars in cash. He disposed of about five dollars this morning at the depot and when he went to go home he had a little over five dollars in two two dollar bills and a one dollar bill and some small change.

During the evening he visited Flannery's saloon on West Milwaukee street and added a few drinks to the supply which he already had. It is his opinion that the thugs who did the work spotted him while he was here although he says that he exhibited no bills in paying for what he bought.

Wishing to go home, he made his way to the depot and purchased a ticket from the ticket agent, handling his pocket book over to the ticket agent to make change for him as he was in such a condition that he did not think he could make it himself.

The ticket agent, Bert Butler, noticed that while the transaction was being made there were a couple of tough-looking fellows standing nearby, and he thinks that they are the ones that did the work, but does not remember what they looked like.

The money in bills was in a roll and it is quite likely that they thought the man carried quite a sum and then noticed where he placed his purse when he put it back in his pocket. After purchasing his ticket, Mr. Lewis went out through the door leading on to Wall street and passed along back of the building. As he came by the baggage room two men grabbed him by the neck from behind, saying, "If you open your mouth, you will shoot you."

One of them struck him with some kind of a hard instrument across the bridge of his nose, stunning him and causing a swelling to rise under his eyes later. They made quick work of securing the pocket book and got away.

The Mysterious Lady.

As the men struck him, Mr. Lewis cried out and the baggage man heard him but thought that it was some drunk who had fallen down and paid no attention to it, particularly as he was engaged in unloading a heavy trunk.

Later, a tall lady in mourning, told him of the occurrence but refused to be "quizzed" concerning it. She evidently saw the whole affair. The baggage master did not know who she was and his recollections of her are that she was dressed in black and wore glasses.

Police Investigation.

The great part of the evening there had been a number of loafers hanging around the depot in the waiting room, evidently all members of the same gang.

Officer Thomas Morrissey, who was at the depot, saw two men running back of the building along Wall street and gave pursuit, they running under a box car and then down through the alley by Soverhill's tobacco warehouse.

On arriving at the place where they had gone under the car he found the bottle of whiskey, and thinking that they were only some boozers who had secured some whiskey, gave up the chase, and made his way back to the depot. Simultaneously the ticket agent was of the pair, the ticket agent was notified of the occurrence and he immediately telephoned to police headquarters and Officer John Brown was sent up.

A thorough investigation of the premises was made and several suspects were arrested and taken to the lock-up where they were searched but no money was found on any of them. Shortly after the time of the robbery, there is a freight train to Chicago, and the real robbers may have caught that and gone out or they could have caught one of the night passenger trains leaving for the north and thus have made their escape.

Charles Moore and Mike Ryan, who were arrested at the depot shortly afterwards while intoxicated, were brought up before Judge Elford this morning. As it could not be proved that they were guilty of the assault that they were fined for drunkenness and given a chance to get out of town.

FIRE DEPARTMENT TESTS HOSE TODAY

Four Hundred and Fifty Feet of Hose Was Tested With Engine And Hydrant.

Four hundred and fifty feet of hose at the West Side station was tested this afternoon under a pressure of over two hundred pounds. The hose was considered questionable by the chief and it was therefore thought best to see if it would stand the pressure.

Water was obtained from the hydrant and was also pumped from the sewer by the old Water Witch engine. This method of pumping water from one of the big sewer pipes has been tried several times and has proven feasible. By this means the engine could be used at a fire without disconnecting any of the leads from the hydrants.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, December 28, 1869.—A Disgraceful Affair.—A brutal fight took place in Brook's saloon on Sunday morning, we learn, between two men, one of whom, at least, has acquired a rather unenviable notoriety for his pugilistic proclivities.

Wisconsin Teacher's Association.—The Executive session of the Wisconsin Teacher's Association will begin this evening at the rooms of the Young Men's Association over the Post Office.

Ku-Klux Klan.—Several outrages have been committed within the past few days by armed and masked Ku-Klux in Union county, Kentucky. On Friday night from ten to twenty of the Klan shot three negroes, two at the Sulphur Springs, and one at Morganfield. At the latter place they entered a negro's house and shot him while he was in bed with his wife. In return he shot and dangerously injured one of the Klan. He was afterwards shot three or four times, benton with a hot shovel and left apparently dead. The negroes are not seriously wounded.

Treason Made Odious.—The full pardon and amnesty proclamation issued by President Johnson includes Jefferson Davis, Breckenridge, Jacob Thompson, Mason, McMillen, and all others who were directly or indirectly engaged in the late insurrection, or rebellion. The parties above named are now in foreign countries.

AT THE PLAY HOUSES

"The County Sheriff," a new play of Western life, will be seen at the Myers theatre on Thursday, Dec. 31. The story concerns a valuable mining claim owned by a Mrs. Blake and her daughter Tuesday. One Dan Porter, leader of a band of horse thieves, knowing the value of the claim, attempts to obtain it, by pretending to be the only rightful heir to Gordon Blake, who had left the property to Mrs. Blake. He is thwarted in his attempts to obtain possession through the efforts of Happy Hazzard, the County Sheriff. Porter for revenge, kidnaps Tuesday, and in a fight with the sheriff and his men, Mrs. Blake, the proprietress of a dance hall, is shot. Porter accusing Tuesday of the crime, she is acquitted, only to be again accused of poisoning Col Wade, one of Porter's gang. The claim in the meantime has been worked by Chamee Clogston, Mrs. Blake's old-time friend and Sir Arkwright, who furnished the money. Hazzard proves that Wade killed himself, and that Porter had no rightful claim to the property, and in the end of course Happy Hazzard wins Tuesday and everybody feels "happy."

LABOR AS PARTNER

It Will Be Shareholder with Capital, Says Carnegie.

SOLUTION OF GREAT PROBLEM

Ironmaster, in His New Book, Predicts Bright Future for Workingman When He Shares Profits with Employer in Stock Companies.

New York, Dec. 28.—"In the future, labor is to rise still higher. The joint-stock form opens the door to the participation of labor as shareholder in every branch of business. In this, the writer believes, lies the final and enduring solution of the labor question. Nothing can stand against the direct management of owners. We are only pioneers whose duty is to start the movement, leaving to our successors its full and free development as human society advances."

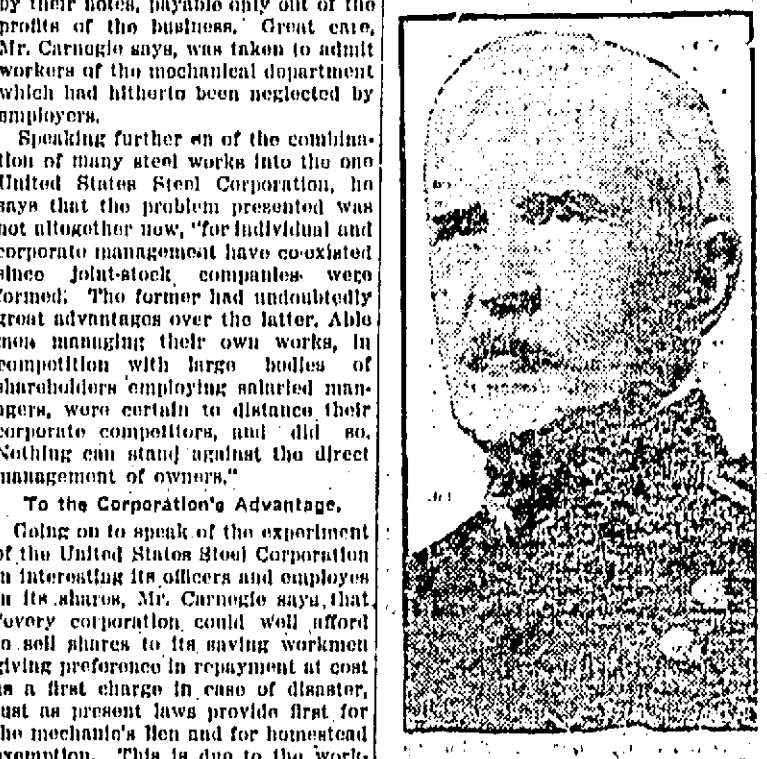

These are striking statements found in an article by Andrew Carnegie in the January number of The World's Work. An editorial note states that the article is taken from Mr. Carnegie's new book "Problems of Today" and that it is published in the magazine "because of the remarkable forecast that he makes of the continued improvement in the position of labor till profit-sharing does its perfect work and the laborer and the capitalist become the same man."

Carnegie Company's Method.
Mr. Carnegie tells of the beginnings made by the Carnegie Steel Company many years ago by making from time to time forty-odd young partners, who paid for their interest in the business by their notes, payable only out of the profits of the business. Great care, Mr. Carnegie says, was taken to admit workers of the mechanical department which had hitherto been neglected by employers.

Speaking further on of the combination of many steel works into the one United States Steel Corporation, he says that the problem presented was not altogether new, "for individual and corporate management have co-existed since joint-stock companies were formed. The former had undoubtedly great advantages over the latter, able men managing their own works, in competition with large bodies of shareholders employing salaried managers, were certain to distance their corporate competitors, and did so. Nothing can stand against the direct management of owners."

To the Corporation's Advantage.
Going on to speak of the experiment of the United States Steel Corporation in interesting its officers and employees in its shares, Mr. Carnegie says that "every corporation could well afford to sell shares to its working men, giving preference in repayment at cost as a first charge in case of disaster, just as present laws provide first for the mechanic's lien and for homestead exemption. This is due to the workman, who necessarily buys the shares without knowledge, and is asked to buy them, not solely for his own advantage, but for the benefit of the company as well—the advantage of both."

The writer points out that "just as the mechanical world has changed and improved, so the world of labor has advanced from the slavery of the laborer to the day of his absolute independence and now to this day, when he begins to take his proper place as the capitalist-partner of his employer. We may look forward with hope to the day when it shall be the rule for

BRIGADIER GENERAL O'REILLY
Surgeon General of the United States Army, who has called together a board of distinguished surgeons to consider the advisability of immunizing the military service from typhoid fever.

This is one of the greatest steps ever taken by the government towards perfecting the already excellent sanitary precautions in camp life. HEIR TO HALF MILLION SENT TO A WORKHOUSE

Scion of Good Baltimore Family Convicted of Vagrancy After Various Adventures.

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 28.—William Jefferson Powell, scion of a fine family in Baltimore, has been sent to the workhouse here for 180 days as a vagrant, despite the fact that he is heir to half a million dollars.

Powell is handsome, refined and well educated, and says he will come into possession of his fortune at the age of 25 years. He will reach that age three months after he is released from the workhouse. Powell's parents are dead and he ran away from his guardian in 1903, enlisting in the Eighteenth battery field artillery and was sent to the Philippines. Later he was sent to Vancouver barracks, Washington.

When he finally secured his discharge from the army, Powell immediately enlisted in the navy. He was assigned to the United States ship Philadelphia, and was stationed at Hampton navy yard. His love for a girl in San Diego caused him to desert and go there, for which he was arrested and sentenced to pay a fine of $100.

After being arrested several times in Los Angeles, Powell was finally tried on the vagrancy charge.

HERE'S A PRETTY MIX-UP.

Complicated Marriage Problem on a Pennsylvania Farm.

Washington, Pa., Dec. 28.—Bewildering relationships among members of the East Finley township families have resulted from the marriages of a father and his two sons and a widow and her two daughters. The three ceremonies were celebrated within the last two months.

Henry Dillinger, an aged farmer whose second wife died nearly a year ago, engaged Mrs. Martha Richmond as his housekeeper. It was agreed that the daughters of Mrs. Richmond, Lucy aged 16, and Jennie aged 19, should live in the Dillinger home with the father and his two sons, Charles and David. After a time the aged farmer married Lucy Richmond and the two families continued to occupy the same home. A few weeks after the first marriage Mrs. Richmond became the wife of David Dillinger, the older son. Jennie Richmond and Charles Dillinger next were stricken with the matrimonial fever and were married last week. The three families now live in the East Finley township home of the older Dillinger, all apparently happy and contented.

Oneonta, N. DOZEN CONGRESSMEN SAIL FOR CANAL ZONE

Members of House Committee on Way to Investigate Form of Government There.

Washington, Dec. 28.—A dozen members of the house committee on foreign and interstate commerce sailed from Charleston today for Colon. It is their intention to study conditions in the canal zone and inquire into the possible need of changes in the form of government there.

It is not thought that any measure having for its object a change in the form of civil government for the zone will receive the consideration of the congress at the present session, but as all but two of the members of the commerce committee, Representatives Hepburn and Sherman will be members of the house in the Sixty-first congress, the committee will find the information secured now of value later.

There has been some discussion of the advisability of attaching the zone to one of the southern circuits of federal courts in order to overcome criticism that has been made of the prevailing judicial system because of the difficulties that have been experienced with regard to the limits of jurisdiction of the civil and military authorities on the zone and the government of Panama.

The congressional party not only will investigate this matter, but also will look into all phases of the construction of the canal.

The party will reach Colon on January 2, arriving in Washington, returning January 14. Those in the party who are accompanied by their wives are Representatives Hepburn, Iowa; Cushman, Washington; Kennedy, Ohio, and Ryan, New York, of the committee. Other members going on the trip are Representatives Stevens, Minnesota; Leah, Wisconsin; Townsend, Michigan; Knowland, California; Hubbard, West Virginia; Adamson, Georgia; Richardson, Alabama, and Bartlett, Georgia. Representatives Morse, Wisconsin; Humphrey, Washington; Lee, Georgia; Conner, Iowa, and Lord, Michigan, also are members of the party, as is J. F. Bryan, the clerk of the committee.

GRAND PEACE CARNIVAL.

Celebration of Perry's Victory Planned—England to Be Invited.

Cleveland, O., Dec. 28.—In the interest of peace and tranquility between two great world powers—Great Britain and America—plans are being perfected to invite the English government to participate in the commemoration of the one hundredth anniversary of the defeat of the English in one of the notable conflicts of the war of 1812—the victory of Perry on Lake Erie.

Arrangements are being made by the state of Ohio to promote a grand peace carnival and joint industrial exhibition to be held on the island of Put-in-Bay in 1913. A commission has been appointed by the governor to formulate a program and this winter the state legislature will be asked to make an appropriation which will put the matter in concrete form. The proposed exposition will run for several weeks during the latter part of the summer of 1913 and will be known as the "International peace centennial."

THE "BLACK CABINET."

By WALDEN FAWCETT.

The United States secret service, which is the bone of contention between the president and congress in controversy that promises to become historic, is frequently denominated the "black cabinet." Whether the present agitation will dispel the mystery that has long existed is very doubtful. It is a delicate job, precipitated there will doubtless be a string of certain phases of secret service work, but it is not to be expected that there will be any lifting of the veil as regards the means and methods of Uncle Sam's "black cabinet."

Owing to the stipulation made by congress in providing the last annual appropriation for the maintenance of the secret service—the same limitations under which President Roosevelt is now chafing—the operations of the secret service are at present restricted to what might be termed its original functions, namely the apprehending of counterfeiters and the protection of the person of the chief magistrate. Until congress called a halt, however, there was a gradual, but continuous expansion of the activities of the nation's secret police until they had come to include their European brethren in the scope of their surveillance.

For instance, secret service operatives were "loaned" to the secretary of the interior and rendered the most important service in securing evidence in connection with the land fraud cases in the west. Other secret service men had a hand in exposing the sensational "Gordon report leak" in the department of agriculture and so the list might be prolonged to include practically all the executive departments of the government, not forgetting the part played by these chief of plain clothes men in investigating charges against naval officers.

Because of the fact that its primary purpose and principal function at the outset was the tracing of counterfeiters and secret service was made a branch of the treasury department. In connection with their shadowing of suspected counterfeiters the secret service men have been enabled to gather much information of the greatest value regarding black hand organizations and the operations of anarchists. Yet other investigations along these lines have resulted from the responsibility of the secret service for the safety of the president and thus, without overstepping the bounds of the law of authorization, the secret service has been enabled to accomplish much in the field of secret police—namely, external vigilance as to the plans and ambitions of the plotters against the world's rulers, until congress shut down upon it last year the treasury department also used the secret service to detect smuggling enterprises and other frauds upon the customs service and to investigate robberies and irregularities of all kinds—and there have recently been some notable one-man branch units, submarines, assay offices, etc. One of President Roosevelt's most bitter complaints has been against the hampering of operations in these directions.

The headquarters of the secret service are in the treasury building at Washington. Here are the private offices of the chief of the service, John E. Wilkie, who receives a salary of $1,000 per year, and the assistant chief, William Herman Moran, who is paid $3,000 per year. There is a clerical division, employing some half a dozen men; and a large store room where confiscated counterfeiters' outfits, spurious coin and other contraband seized by secret service men are deposited and allowed to accumulate until, at intervals of about a year, a committee is appointed to superintend the destruction of these unlawful articles. The equipment of the secret service headquarters embraces some interesting features, including delicate scales for weighing coins whose genuineness is questioned and a "Rogues' Gallery" consisting of a monster file of photos of counterfeiters and other offenders against the law.

However, the secret service bureau at Washington is essentially a nerve center from which are directed the operations of the 25 districts into which the country is divided on the secret service map. In each of these districts a secret service operative is stationed just as a patrolman is on duty on his beat, but in addition to the men thus detailed to indicated geographical divisions, there operate from the central office at Washington a number of trained detectives who may literally be sent to any place at any time. To this class belong the secret service men, who render the regular bodyguard of the president whenever the chief executive makes a tour of the country or participates in any great public function.

It is this field service which makes it necessary for every secret service man to abandon all thought of fixed habitation with social and family ties. He may be ordered from New York to Texas or from the mountains of Tennessee to San Francisco at an hour's notice and it is impossible to predict in advance how long he will remain at any given place. True to the motto of the public know just as little as possible regarding his personnel. No secret service operative allows his photograph to be made, much less published, if he can help it, and he seldom acknowledges his vocation. At the headquarters of the secret service there is a rule against disclosing the name or address of any of the agents and in no government publication not even in the "Blue Book," which is supposed to list every government employee, can there be found any roster of the secret service men or information as to the salaries paid them.

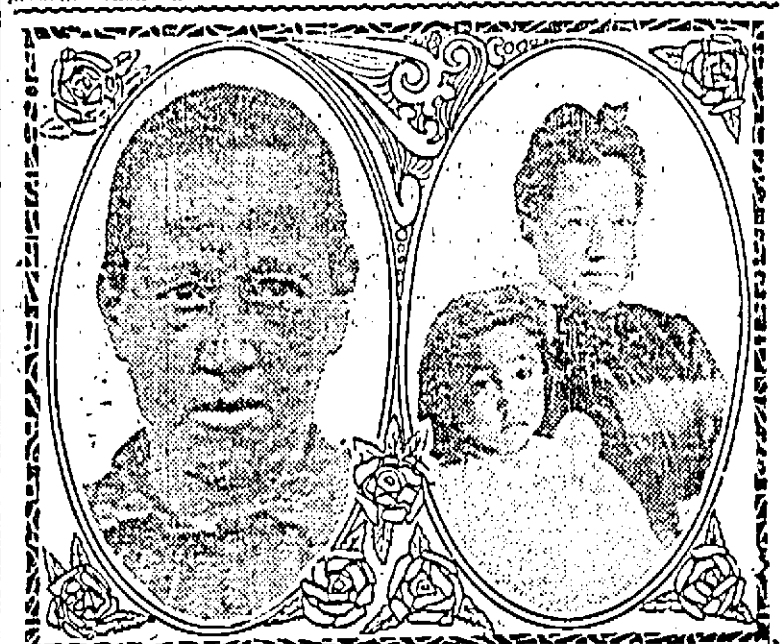

However, it may be stated that the pay is not high, considering the hardship and danger involved, and the secret service is likely to attract only men whose love of a life of adventure and excitement outweighs their desire for monetary reward. A new recruit in the secret service starts out as an assistant operative at $3 per day and if he proves worthy, is promoted in due course to the rank of operative at $5 per day. As an operative his pay may increase to $7 per day, but the secret service operative whose salary reaches the point just short of $70 per week must have proven his worth by long service and have the experience which can be gained in no other manner than by practical secret service work.

For all that the monetary rewards of a secret career are by no means excessive there is never any dearth of applicants for the limited number of positions in this confidential corps. Following any occasion such as the present when the secret service is brought conspicuously to the attention of the public, Chief Wilkie receives applications by the score from young men in all parts of the country, who are ambitious to shine as scouts. A large majority of aspirants naturally confess that they have had no experience whatever which would fit them for this highly specialized field. Many of the inexperienced applicants are obviously impossible, but even among those who are sufficiently promising to receive more than passing consideration the proportion of inexperienced is overwhelming. Indeed, of the 700 men whose names are now on the "waiting list" of eligibles at the secret service—that is, men who have complied with the civil service regulations governing applications for places in the secret service—more than 600 admit that they are totally devoid of practical experience in this line.

With a profession which above all others needs devotees who can bring to it wide knowledge and thorough training, yet with most applicants sorely deficient in these qualifications, the question naturally suggests itself: Where does the secret service secure its agents? In reply it may be said that upward of a dozen different callings have demonstrated their value as fields of apprenticeship. Some of the most capable secret service operatives now on Uncle Sam's payroll have come from the claim departments of the great railroads. Others have gained their training with the mercantile agencies and still others have come from law offices where certain classes of detective work are frequently necessary. Two of the best men on the force were formerly heads of municipal police departments. Others served for years in legitimate private detective organizations or independent police departments maintained by the great railway systems. A certain proportion have had the benefit of preliminary service as United States deputy marshals and not a few have come to the secret service from the departments of public safety in foreign countries. These latter, by reason of their knowledge of foreign tongues and manners, have been invaluable to the service.

As may be surmised secret service duty is predominantly work for young men. The average age of the field operatives is under 35 years. Chief Wilkie himself, who by the way, was one of the bright young men whom Lyman Gage brought from Chicago when he was secretary of the treasury, is but 46 years of age and was only 36-odd when he stepped into his present responsible position.

PRISON TRANSFORMS MRS. KATE EDWARDS FROM SEMI-BARBARITY TO CIVILIZATION. THESE TWO PHOTOGRAPHS SHOW THIS CLEARLY.

Hendling, Pa., Dec. 24.—Six years ago "Katie" Edwards was the dirtiest, most inhuman, drunken brute in the row of tumbled down houses, tomotherly woman always busy and the happiest who has ever been in her life.

This change has taken place during her six years in prison. She is charged with murder. Death warrants have been read to her so frequently that they cease to cause even dread in her heart. As a matter of fact it is now very doubtful if she will ever be hanged for the crime of which a jury has said she was guilty. Once a gal-lows was erected where she could see it from her window. Then came the reprieve.

All the time during these years she has been changing. Today she is the model prisoner and friendly to all her associates. In fact it is said she has a remarkable influence for better over the others.

The change has been brought about by the force of many influences outside herself and within herself. The years spent in jail are the only happy ones of her life. At the early age of 17 years she was married to John Edwards, a drunken quarryman. Both were without education and without principle. He beat her, and choked her and made her the beast who became. Five children were born to them and they existed in a few rooms like so many animals. Then came the mysterious murder of her husband. She was suspected and at last found guilty of his murder. A baby girl was born while she was in prison. The influence of this child was marked on this former wild beast. She saw even in prison the better side of life. The world took on a new aspect. Gradually the hard lines of her face softened, she was a different woman.

Public sympathy was awakened and the pardon board implored to set her free. At last 275,000 women of Ohio took it up with Governor Pennypacker. He refused to interfere but owing to some trouble with the pardon board he never set the day for her execution. So it stands.

Governor Stuart shows no desire to set the day and now there is a prevailing feeling that if she committed the crime, she was surely insane at the time.

The most unusual and dramatic part regards the child born in prison. When the mother expected to be hanged she consented to part with the child. A body of ladies in one of the western states volunteered to see that the child had a home if the transfer was so arranged that he child could never be traced.

Mrs. Emma Kantner of this city undertook the transfer of the child. She was told to take the child to Broad street station in Philadelphia and give it to a lady who should give her a slip of paper showing her authority. The transfer was made and today no person but the one receiving the child at Broad street knows its whereabouts. No doubt it is well taken care of in some nice home. As this child of the prison grows into womanhood there will be no record to confront her and she will be much happier in the new home.

How to Stop Littering of Streets.

Mayor E. W. Granger of Leavenworth, Kan., is looking for information as to what method to pursue to prevent paper being scattered about the streets. He has given the police orders to arrest any one whom they see throwing paper on the streets or sidewalks, but the greatest difficulty to be overcome in enforcing the ordinance against littering the streets is to catch the offenders in the act.

Flowers and Smiles.
The distribution during the summer of thousands of bunches of flowers to little children is an unusual and pleasant work that is done by the Pittsburg Playgrounds association through the playgrounds. The association is dependent for the flowers in large part upon the generosity of its friends, the flowers coming from the private gardens of the city and its suburbs. To remind his friends, the association included this year in its appeal the words, "The flowers you send may fall into the hands of just a 'Dirty little fellow in a dirty part of town.' Where the window panes are sooty and the roofs are tumbledown, where the snow falls black in winter and the willing sultry heat comes like pestilence in summer through the narrow dirty street. But amid the want and aqualor of the crowded, sorry place you can find the little fellow by his happy, smiling face."

The Greedy Caterpillar.
The caterpillar each month eats food weighing 5,000 times its own weight.
